

Time Together.
Kindergarten student Logan Weeks watches the assembly with his friends.

CELEBRATION KNIGHT TIME

Following the Rules.
Molly Bearden, 4th, and Stella Gebard, 4th, celebrate their "Obedience" awards.

Involvement.
Teachers and students join together to have fun and encourage Lower School students to continue having positive, loving attitudes. They applaud students for demonstrating virtues worthy of being a Christ-centered servant leader. Getting many people involved is important to getting people awarded for their good character and making sure everyone gets a chance to win an award for themselves. It makes it all worth it when you see the students join together and smile about having a great time.

Playing Together.
Students have a blast drumming their hearts away.

Drop a Beat. Hannah Ellis, 3rd, puts on a show with her friends as they drum their hearts away. These students are given the chance to perform during Knight Time.

Best of Friends. Irelynn Ayala, 1st, and Anniston Hanna, 1st, love being together during Knight Time.

DANCING

SINGING

Each month, the entire Lower School takes part in an assembly, run by Mrs. Stockton and Mrs. Woody. Students get to perform fun dances, sing popular songs, and play instruments, like make-shift drums made of laundry baskets and workout balls. Creativity is seen throughout this event, mixing invention and music. Another exciting part of Knight Time are the monthly awards, such as the "Honesty" award, "Integrity" award, and the "I'm Third" Award, given to students for exemplifying the fruits of the spirit or being a class leader throughout the month, as well as birthday announcements for kids whose special day is just around the corner. Parents love to come and watch their child be recognized for their Christ-like behavior.

Knight Time has become a special Lower School tradition looked forward to by students, teachers, and parents alike. It provides an opportunity to unite and come together as a school and celebrate achievements as well as the many gifts God has blessed His children with.
